These latests gadgets to the virtual reality headsets were sutruded. Pinching Yashpal's arm, he said in a half-mocking tone. There were many anti-terrorist operations going on. It was just over an hour since he had seen her last. The last four years are the most painful memories. Push the panic button if you need assistance. Not like me. I'm the daughter of the most evil guy in the universe. So, it was almost a year now since he had seen her last. Kriya's heart fluttered. Her hands clenched the countertops, anticipating the final outcome of their wedding. I've been heartbroken over the past four years. The way she had turned from me and gotten engaged to someone else, I just couldn't bear it. I had to do something, or else the person I loved the most would slip away from me. My love for her would be lost. I was her first love and I knew that she still loved me. I had no way of knowing. But then, I was the only one in the world who knew her true feelings for me. She would never share it with anyone. Not even to her father or to her friends. I was still her only confidante. From the time we had become friends, we had met several times. That was in 2011. But, she stopped calling me after her father had called her up and had shouted at her. Why did I think I was different from other guys? I had read her Facebook posts, of her and her new boyfriend. I knew they had started living together. She had broken her engagement to him. Her father had become an issue, which I was never able to understand. My father was a rich industrialist, who supported and even financed a few social welfare projects. The reason he cared so much for me is because I was the son of his only daughter. I am the son of a dying widow. My father had adopted me from a children's home and raised me. His own children had all died. I was his only child, but no one knew that. My father only loved me and did his best to take care of me. But, there was no girl in my life. I was all alone, like the son of a poor, dying widow. I tried to fix myself. I managed to 82157476af
